DETAILED ACTION

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1 to 6, 13 to 38 and 45 to 58 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Leskela et al in view of Manasevit et al.

The Leskela et al reference teaches a method and apparatus for the atomic layer deposition process. The reference teaches the use of multiple sources in one system to create the desired deposition. The sources can be liquid solid or gas and an inert gas is used in the supply system. The gases are flowed to a substrate in pulses to deposit the layers, note entire reference. The sole difference between the instant claims and the prior art is the gas feed system. However, the Manasevit et al reference teaches a gas feed system for a multi source deposition process. There is means to supply the inert gases upstream and down stream from the source containers. There is a means to vent the gases prior to deposition and after deposition. The gases can be feed in pulse feeds, note figures. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the Leskela et al reference by the teachings of the Manasevit et al reference to use the gases feed system of Manasevit et al in order to obtain a more uniform flows as set forth in the prior art.

Claims 7 to 12, and 39 to 44 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Leskela et al in view of Manasevit et al.

The Leskela et al and Manasevit et al. references are relied on for the same reasons as stated, supra, and differ from the instant claims in the use of a purifier. However, in the absence of unexpected results, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to determine through routine experimentation the optimum, operable means to clean the gases in the Leskela et al and Manasevit et al references in order to lower impurities in the deposited layers.
